Seonyu mentioned that she is facing difficulties while working with JavaScript and JSON. As she is learning a new language, it is challenging for them to implement adding events to the component. Currently, we are in the high-fidelity prototyping phase, but next week we will start writing HTML, CSS, and JS code. we plan to dig deeper into the JS document and refer to other videos to become more familiar with the JS language. However, this may cause a delay in the project. Seonyu also mentioned that we have several solutions, and we need to carefully consider which one would be the easiest to implement.

Here is an update on our progress with the project: we have been working on it consistently and it has helped us to better understand the concept. It has also inspired some ideas that we can apply to the project. For the booking component, Seonyu plans to use buttons as it will make it easier to match with the back-end side.
